News from WISE

The Washington
University Institute for Surgical Education

U. Wisc-Madison Skills Decay Study – 7 Wash U research residents participated in this Department of Defense study about skills decay during the lab years. Thanks to those who participated.

ABS SIMPL (System for Improving and Measuring Procedural Learning) Study – This study is to improve measurement and feedback on resident performance and independence in the operating room by using a software-based application, known as SIMPL, that will enable faculty to provide real-time feedback at the end of an OR case. The study is open to all categorical general surgery residents and supervising surgeons of categorical general surgery residents who have an iPhone. Faculty and residents, if you missed the training sessions please contact Debbie Tiemann, RN or Dr. Paul Wise.

New endoscopy rotation requirements: Instituted to prep for the clinical rotation, meet the Flexible Endoscopy Curriculum requirements, and prepare to for the ABS-mandated Fundamentals of Endoscopic Surgery (FES) exam. Angie or Debbie will email the requirements to residents a couple of weeks prior to their rotation. The first day of the rotation residents will report to the WISE office for a review of scope and tower set up and troubleshooting and to work on cases on the endoscopy simulator.

Welcome New Faculty

Jeffrey Blatnik, MD, joined the Section of Minimally Invasive Surgery as an Assistant Professor after completing a minimally invasive surgery fellowship at Case Western Reserve University in Cleveland, Ohio. He also completed a general surgery residency and earned a medical degree at Case Western Reserve University. Dr. Blatnik will focus on complex abdominal wall hernia repair, minimally invasive foregut surgery, minimally invasive management of foregut disorders, inguinal hernia, endoscopic treatment of achalasia and laparoscopic diaphragm pacing for the treatment of spinal cord injury.

Eleanor Drew, MD, was named an Assistant Professor in the Section of Acute and Critical Care Surgery. She joins the faculty after completing a surgical critical care fellowship at Washington University and a general surgery residency at the University of Chicago Hospitals. She graduated from University of Chicago Pritzker School of Medicine. Dr. Drew will specialize in trauma and burn surgery as well as surgical critical care.
